

I do NOT want them to change our do no call law, as a wi resident, I had received up to 100+ calls a day for things I did not want or ask for, I even stopped signing up for things because companies sell the lists they get.

It is bad enough that every darn sherrif's and troopers, and vets "charities" call me. And they can get away with it because technically they don't want to sell you something just pester you 2-6 times a year for money. It gets to the point that if I don't know a number I don't answer my phone and many out of state calls show up as out of area or unavailable. I even with my mail call companies to ask them to take mine and my husbands name off of their lists even if it is addressed to "current resident"

If the FCC changes our law I would practiacally never answer my phone, or even check voice mail. It is ridiculous that telemarketers do not use conventional advertising to sell their goods and services. I say to them if I wanted it I would have called you. And because many telemarketers show up as unavailable or what not, I cant distinguish between family calling from out of state or someone who wants to sell me something. I wont even go to work for a telemarketing agency, I'd rather flip burgers or muck out a barn before I would do that. I have even tried calling back numbers to get nothing, called directory assistance to find that the number on my caller id is not even for the telemarketer that is calling, I don't need the harassment, and always during a meal or bathtime for myself or my children, right when I am trying to put my kids to bed, its not needed, and the FCC should recognize that considering they get a cut of everything I use from my cable modem to my telephone, my sattilite dish. Its outrageous, I ask what are they getting from the telemarketers that makes them push to do this to us. I am sorry for those that do work as telemarketers because they are just trying to make a living, but still, just because I have a telephone, it does not give them a right to harass me and my family.

Sincerely

P. Beard

Hudson WI